ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Maidah Syed is a young storyteller who loves to turn her imagination and everyday surroundings into meaningful stories.

She especially enjoys writing tales based on good values and important life lessons, such as kindness, friendship, courage, and caring for others.

Maidah finds inspiration in the people, places, and small moments around her, turning simple ideas into relatable characters that children love.

Through her work, she hopes to make young readers smile, think, imagine, and learn something valuable.

“Every little idea can become a beautiful story.”

Maidah Syed,
Young Author 📖 ✨

Once upon a time, there were two sisters named Buntly and Klicky. They were both mice. Sadly, their parents had passed away, so the two sisters lived together and were very poor.

One day, they ran out of groceries at home. They had a little money saved, so they decided to go to the market to buy some food. They left their house and happily made their way to the market.

On their way home, they saw a fox named Buvi lying by the side of the road. She was badly hurt and needed help. They decided to help her immediately. They used the money they had saved to buy groceries and borrowed a phone from someone nearby to call an ambulance.

The ambulance arrived quickly, and they took Buvi to the hospital. The doctors treated her and saved her life.

Bunty and Klicky asked, "Where are your parents?"

Buvi replied sadly, "We went on vacation, and we were very happy.

Suddenly, while we were talking, my father looked ahead, but he could not stop the car in time. Our car crashed into a tree. Sadly, I lost both of my parents that day."

Klicky said, "We don't have parents either. We lost them too."

Bunty gently said, "You don't have to be alone anymore. You can live with us."

On their way back home, it suddenly started to rain. Buvi became very scared when she heard the loud thunder and saw the lightning. The three of them quickly hurried home.

When they reached home, Buvi felt hungry and told Klicky that she wanted something to eat. Klicky went to the kitchen, but there was no food left. Then she remembered that the money they had saved to buy groceries had been spent on helping Buvi.

Klicky explained everything to Buvi. Buvi understood their situation and felt sorry for troubling them. She quietly drank a glass of water and went to sleep.

The next day, Klicky went out to look for a job. She found a job cleaning a house. Since she was the elder sister, she wanted to help take care of her little sister, Bunty.

Klicky worked hard every day. A few days later, she received her first salary, five thousand rupees!

She felt very happy and proud. She was excited to go home and share the good news with Bunty.

Klicky smiled all the way home, thinking about how she could use her money to buy groceries for their little house.

On her way home, Klicky saw a poor old man sitting by the roadside and asking people for money.

Klicky felt sorry for him. Without thinking twice, she gave him all five thousand rupees she had earned.

Suddenly, something magical happened!

The poor man began to sparkle and changed into a beautiful fairy.

Klicky was shocked and surprised. She looked at the fairy with wide eyes and asked, "How did you become a fairy?" The fairy smiled and said, "I was testing people by asking them for money, but no one wanted to help me. You are a poor girl, yet you gave me all the money you had. Your kind heart has touched me."

"You deserve a special reward for your kindness. You may make three wishes, and I will grant them for you!"

Klicky was amazed. She could hardly believe what she had just heard!

Klicky shook her head and said, "No, no! I don't want anything. I only did what I felt was right. It is our responsibility to help others."

The fairy smiled warmly and said, "You truly are a kind and caring girl. You deserve this gift."

Klicky thought for a moment and then said, "Okay! My first wish is to give money to all the poor people in my village."

The fairy waved her magic wand and said, "Your wish is granted!"

In the blink of an eye, every poor family in the village received enough money to buy food, clothes, and other things they needed.

Klicky was very happy to see everyone smiling.

Klicky smiled and said, "My second wish is to have enough money for Buntty and me."

The fairy waved her magic wand and said, "Your wish is granted!"

Then Klicky said, "My last wish is to have a beautiful home filled with groceries for Buntty and me."

The fairy waved her wand again. In a flash, their wish came true!

Klicky was overjoyed. She smiled and said, "Thank you so much!"

The fairy smiled and replied, "You're welcome, Klicky. Always remember to be kind and helpful. Now, goodbye!"

"Goodbye!" Klicky waved as the fairy disappeared into the sparkling sky.

The next day, Klicky, Buntty, and Buvi went to the market. They bought everything they needed for their new home. They also bought food, clothes, and other useful things for the poor people in their village.

They were happy to have enough, but even happier to share with others. From that day on, they lived a happy and peaceful life, always helping people in need.

And so, Klicky's magical adventure came to a happy ending.

Moral of the Story

True kindness comes from the heart, not from how much we have. When we help all others selflessly, our kindness bring happiness and positive change to many lives... ✨
